

Author Biography

Karim Anton Calis, PharmD, MPH, FASHP, FCCP

Dr. Calis is a Clinical Reviewer in the Division of Metabolism and Endocrinology Products of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and a Clinical Investigator with the Eunice Kennedy Shriver National Institute of Child Health and Human Development and the National Institute of Diabetes and Digestive and Kidney Diseases at the National Institutes of Health. He is a Professor at the Medical College of Virginia, Virginia Commonwealth University, and Clinical Professor at the University of Maryland. He received his Bachelor of Science and Doctor of Pharmacy degrees from the University of Maryland and a Master of Public Health degree from The Johns Hopkins University Bloomberg School of Public Health.

Dr. Calis is a nationally recognized clinical scientist who has authored over 130 peer-reviewed publications in high-impact journals, major medical textbooks, and authoritative electronic media. Over the past 20 years, his clinical research has focused on hypothalamic-pituitary-adrenal axis disorders, primary ovarian insufficiency, and childhood growth and obesity. His work in endocrinology, including child and reproductive health, has appeared regularly in prominent medical and endocrine journals. Dr. Calis is an active member of multiple professional organizations and has chaired numerous committees and task forces, including the U.S. Pharmacopeia Endocrinology Expert Committee. He is the recipient of many national professional awards and is an elected member (Distinguished Practitioner) of the National Academies of Practice.