

Keys to Unlocking the Past, Present and Future of Health- System Pharmacy

Wednesday, August 26, 2009

2:00 PM - 3:00 PM EDT

TOGETHER WE MAKE A GREAT TEAM

Overview of Today's Webinar

The call to change the practice of health-system pharmacy has gone out to those in the profession. But you're saying to yourself; "Why do we need to change? I like my current job and do not want it to change." With growing talk of health-care reform and increasing economic constraints, the call to change health-system pharmacy has been issued. This webinar targeted for new practitioners will cover important initiatives of pharmacy past, which have shaped what is called health-system pharmacy today. Where did clinical pharmacy get its start? When did pharmacists start playing a larger role within the medical team? How has the improved training of pharmacy students affected health-system pharmacy? Enjoy this opportunity to listen and learn as three practitioners with three uniquely different backgrounds give their perspective on health-system pharmacy and take a look into their crystal balls to try and forecast the future for our profession.

By the end of this Webinar, you will be able to:

- ❖ Describe key pharmacy initiatives and meetings which shaped current clinical pharmacy practice
- ❖ Explain current issues affecting clinical pharmacy practice and possible solutions to address these issues
- ❖ Formulate a vision for clinical pharmacy practice to improve and advance pharmacy in health systems over the next decade

Join William Zellmer, B.S.Pharm., M.P.H, Brian Erstad PharmD, FASHP, and Cindi Brennan PharmD, MHA, FASHP as they provide a unique view into the past, present and future of health-system pharmacy.

